Product description

The embroidery thread that gives plastic waste a new lease of life

Madeira Polyocean is a premium embroidery thread made from recycled polyester, produced from plastic waste collected from the sea, rivers and coastal areas. By transforming collected plastic into high-quality embroidery thread, Polyocean helps to reduce the amount of plastic in the natural environment whilst delivering the quality required for professional embroidery. The thread combines high durability, vibrant colours and excellent machine performance with a more sustainable choice of material for businesses wishing to reduce their environmental footprint.

The same performance as a premium polyester thread

Polyocean has been developed to withstand demanding applications where embroidery is exposed to wear and tear, frequent washing and daily use. The thread retains its colour, lustre and strength over time and performs just as well on industrial embroidery machines as traditional polyester threads. This makes Polyocean an excellent choice for businesses wishing to combine sustainability with high quality and productivity.

Perfect for:

- Sustainable fashion collections
- Promotional and corporate clothing
- Sports and functional clothing
- Workwear
- Denim and streetwear
- Bags and accessories
- Footwear
- Home textiles

High quality for professional production

Polyocean has been developed for industrial embroidery production and delivers even stitches, high durability and reliable machine performance. For companies wishing to offer products with a clear focus on sustainability without compromising on quality, Polyocean is the obvious choice. With Polyocean, plastic waste from the sea is given a new lease of life in the form of professional-quality, long-lasting embroidery. Polyocean is available in 40-gauge on 1,000-metre spools.
